

Checklist - home contents

Replacing the contents of your home would be an expensive process, so it's important to correctly estimate the cost of replacing all your contents with new items. Clothing and household linen are the only items where you need to make a deduction for wear and tear.

This checklist provides examples of the types of items that may be found in a typical three bedroom house. Using this list can help you assess the replacement value of your home contents and the cost of replacing items with new. Current prices of many household items can be found in a high street catalogue, or by referring to the Internet.

Using this checklist as a guide, walk around your home to help calculate the total sum insured you require.
